

HAA Undergrad Bi-Weekly Update

View as PDF

Welcome

This week, we would like to encourage you all to consider applying for upcoming internships and opportunities, many of which will have deadlines in early January of next year. The department does its best to bring as many opportunities to your attention as possible, through this newsletter and the HAA website. Making use of the services available to you through the College's various offices is a must: The Office of Undergraduate Research and Fellowships \(URAF\) curate their own list (full list here), as well as providing advising and mentorship; the CARAT database provides a more exhaustive list of available internships and fellowships. The Office of Career Services also provide advice in locating internships and career opportunities.

Do not forget that the Senior Thesis Symposium is rapidly approaching (Thursday, December 1st, 8:30 am to 6 pm). Please feel free to attend for as much as you can and help support your peers!

Join us on November 29th, 12–3PM, for our first Writing Oasis of the academic year. The event will be held on the fourth floor of 485 Broadway, in the department's study space. The Writing Oasis is open to all HAA community members wishing to make progress on their work in a productive space, surrounded by supportive peers. We'll start by sharing our writing goals for the day, after which everyone can begin working at whatever pace they feel most comfortable. Light refreshments and snacks will be available in the Living Room— feel free to come and go as you need to. We hope to see you there next Tuesday as we get ready to enter Reading Week, and we especially want to encourage newly declared concentrators to stop by and say hello.

Finally, we hope everyone has a restorative Thanksgiving break!

HAA Alumni Focus

Elizabeth "Betsy" S. Hawley (HAA Class of '09) is an art historian, writer, and curator specializing in art of the Americas and modern and contemporary art. Since graduating from Harvard, she completed a MA at the Courtauld Institute of Art and PhD at the CUNY Graduate Center. She has held curatorial positions at MoMA and the Philadelphia Museum of Art, and served as a visiting faculty member at institutions including Boston University, Earlham College, Northeastern University, and Santa Clara University. Hawley is currently an assistant professor of art history at the University of South Alabama, where she balances teaching and research with an active curatorial practice. She recently organized "Native Feminisms" at NYC gallery apexart and forthcoming shows include "Landscapes of Survivance" at the Santa Clara University Art Gallery and "Borderwaters" at the Alabama Contemporary Art Center.
